Jim Cummins

Jim Cummins is an award-winning American photojournalist whose work is well-known from the many photographs he has taken of legendary rock, rhythm and blues, soul, jazz, country/western and gospel performers of the 1960's through the early 1980's. Over 900 music albums from that era, many of which went Gold, Platinum and Diamond, used Jim's photographs as their album covers. Many of his other photographs of legendary performers of that era were published as magazine covers and in feature articles in magazines such as Newsweek, Rolling Stone and Life Magazine. Two of Jim's album covers won Album Cover of The Year awards, and Jim's photograph for the cover of the groundbreaking November, 1967 issue of Newsweek Magazine, devoted to the civil rights issues confronting America during the 1960s, won the National Magazine Award. Born in 1944 in New York City, Jim attended New York City's High School of Music & Art and studied art, drawing and painting at the New York City's Museum of Modern Art, at the School of Visual Arts in New York City and at the Art Students League of New York. Jim began his career as a photojournalist working for Newsweek Magazine from 1965 through 1970. During that period, Jim also worked for almost all of the major music labels, including Atlantic Records, Columbia Records, Capitol Records, Mercury Records, Savoy Records, Springboard Records, and London Records. Jim has also been a staff photographer for the NBA, Black Enterprise Magazine, the New York Times and Newsday.

According to Rosemary from her blog about New York

These are what Rosemary feels are the BEST cannoli if you are craving one in New York City. Many of the places listed below ship their items, would be fun for a holiday or special occasion like a birthday! This would be a great list to do a cannoli tour on your own, try each place, and see what you think. If you have never had a cannoli, you MUST try one ASAP! They are the ultimate dessert!

Robert Santangelo writes:

Recently I had the pleasure to see a photograph taken by Harvey Kopel of a Frog. It was awesome. today in the afternoon I was called out by two young girls asking me if I could take a photograph of a Frog they called their own frog. Their mother agreed it would be all right As they pointed out where the frog was hiding. I was unable to step over the metal fence and I was quite afraid I might fall down. The girls helped me by opening the green grass petals away from the frog.

Stonecrop Gardens in Cold Spring, New York, is a great place to go and enjoy flowers and small animals. I photographed many varieties of flowers and saw bees and bugs, frogs, chipmunks, and snakes. Although not this year, It was a great day in the countryside.
